

Mechanical Engineering Internship – Heat exchanger Manufacturing (Cape Town)

Thermocoil specializes in manufacturing fin & tube heat exchangers for a wide variety of HVAC&R applications. With consistent growth in the last 15 years, we have much to offer our industry customers in terms of custom-made and site-specific solutions to suit their needs. Thermocoil has adapted its offerings to align with global trends towards greener alternatives in the HVAC&T sectors. We are based in Epping 2, Cape Town.

If you have completed your mechanical or mechatronic, engineering studies successfully, you can jump start your career in the manufacturing sector. Learning curve will be steep as you can handle, with experienced hands to learn from should you goal be to absorb and learn as much as you can as soon as you can. Exposure to of HVAC & R sector requirements & norm.

The ideal candidate would be a good team player, able to multiply and combine efforts, taking the lead as required. Someone that can follow instructions and focus on the stipulated customer requirements with the long-term goal, of professional ECSA registration.

We trust this is an excellent opportunity for the right individuals with a good work ethic, to learn a diverse set of skills while they are contributing to a successful organization in a productive manner.

Please forward your current CV to info@thermocoil.co.za

